I can't wait for Ramadan, a month so special and grand,
Heaven opens wide its doors by Allah's command.

I can't wait for Ramadan, each day I try to be,
Doing good with the right intention, as pure as can be.

I can't wait to fast and do my part,
It makes my iman grow strong in my heart.

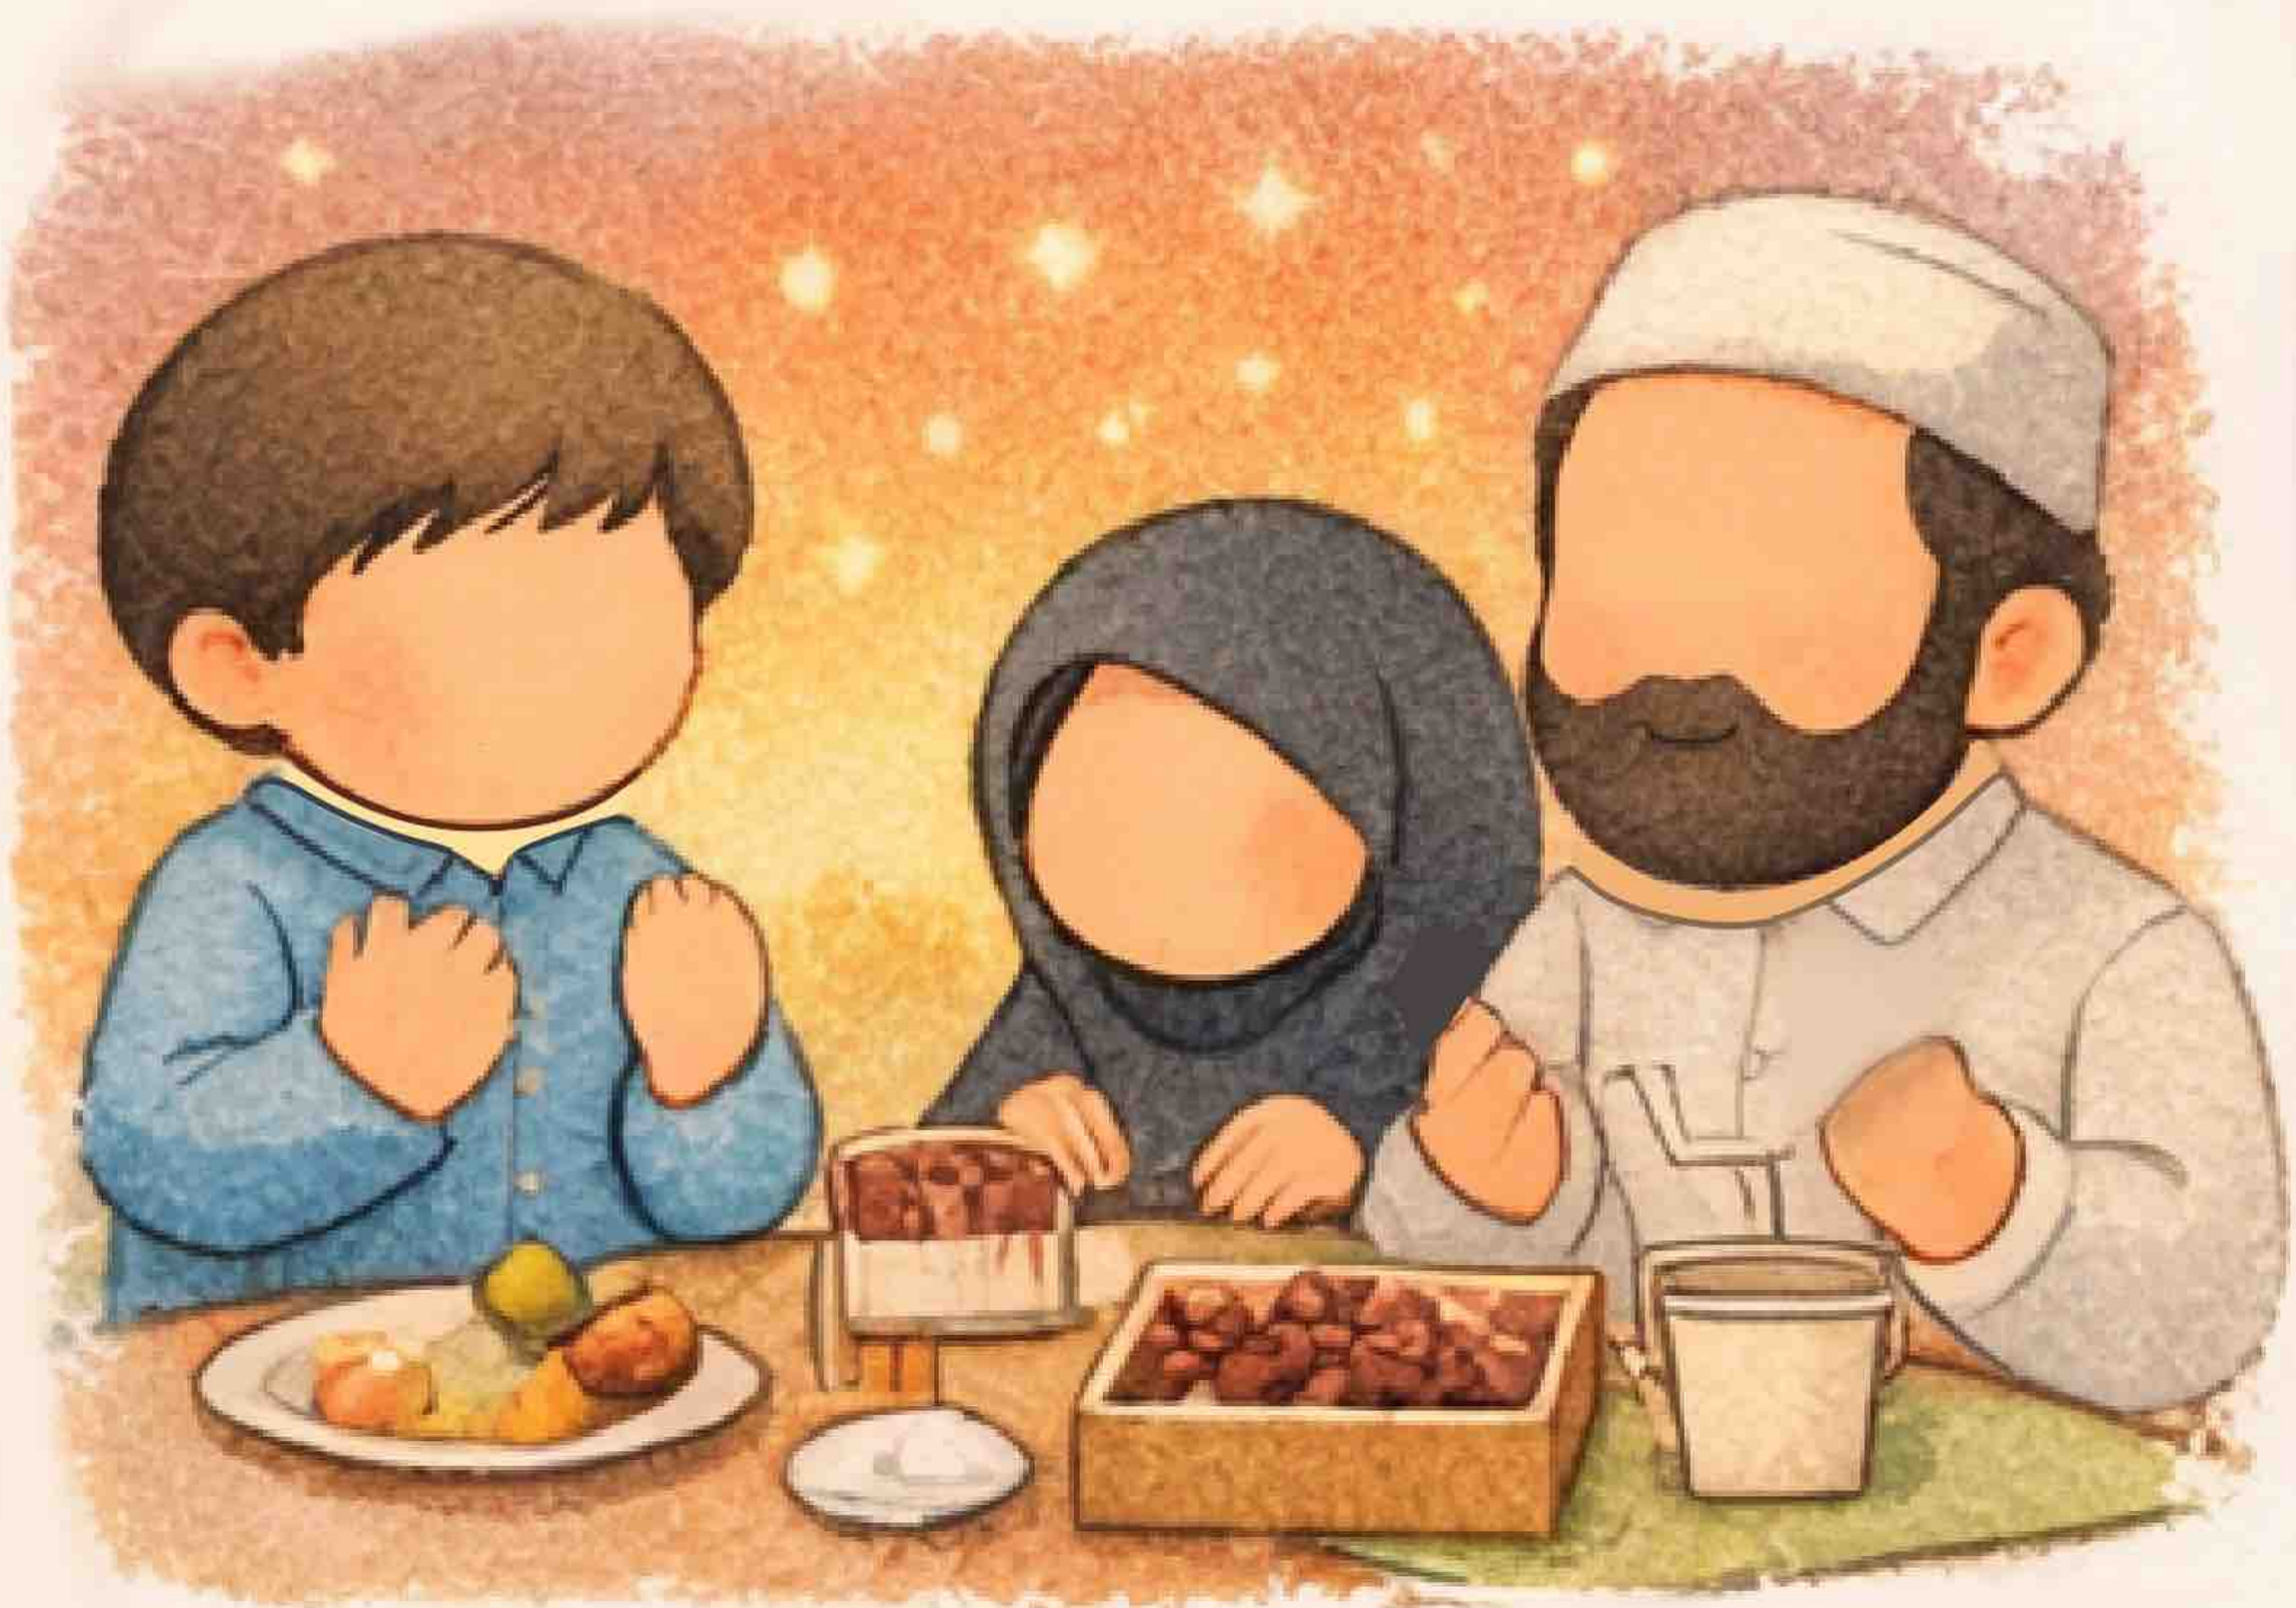

No food and no drink from dawn till the sun goes down.
I'll try my best to be patient, without a frown.

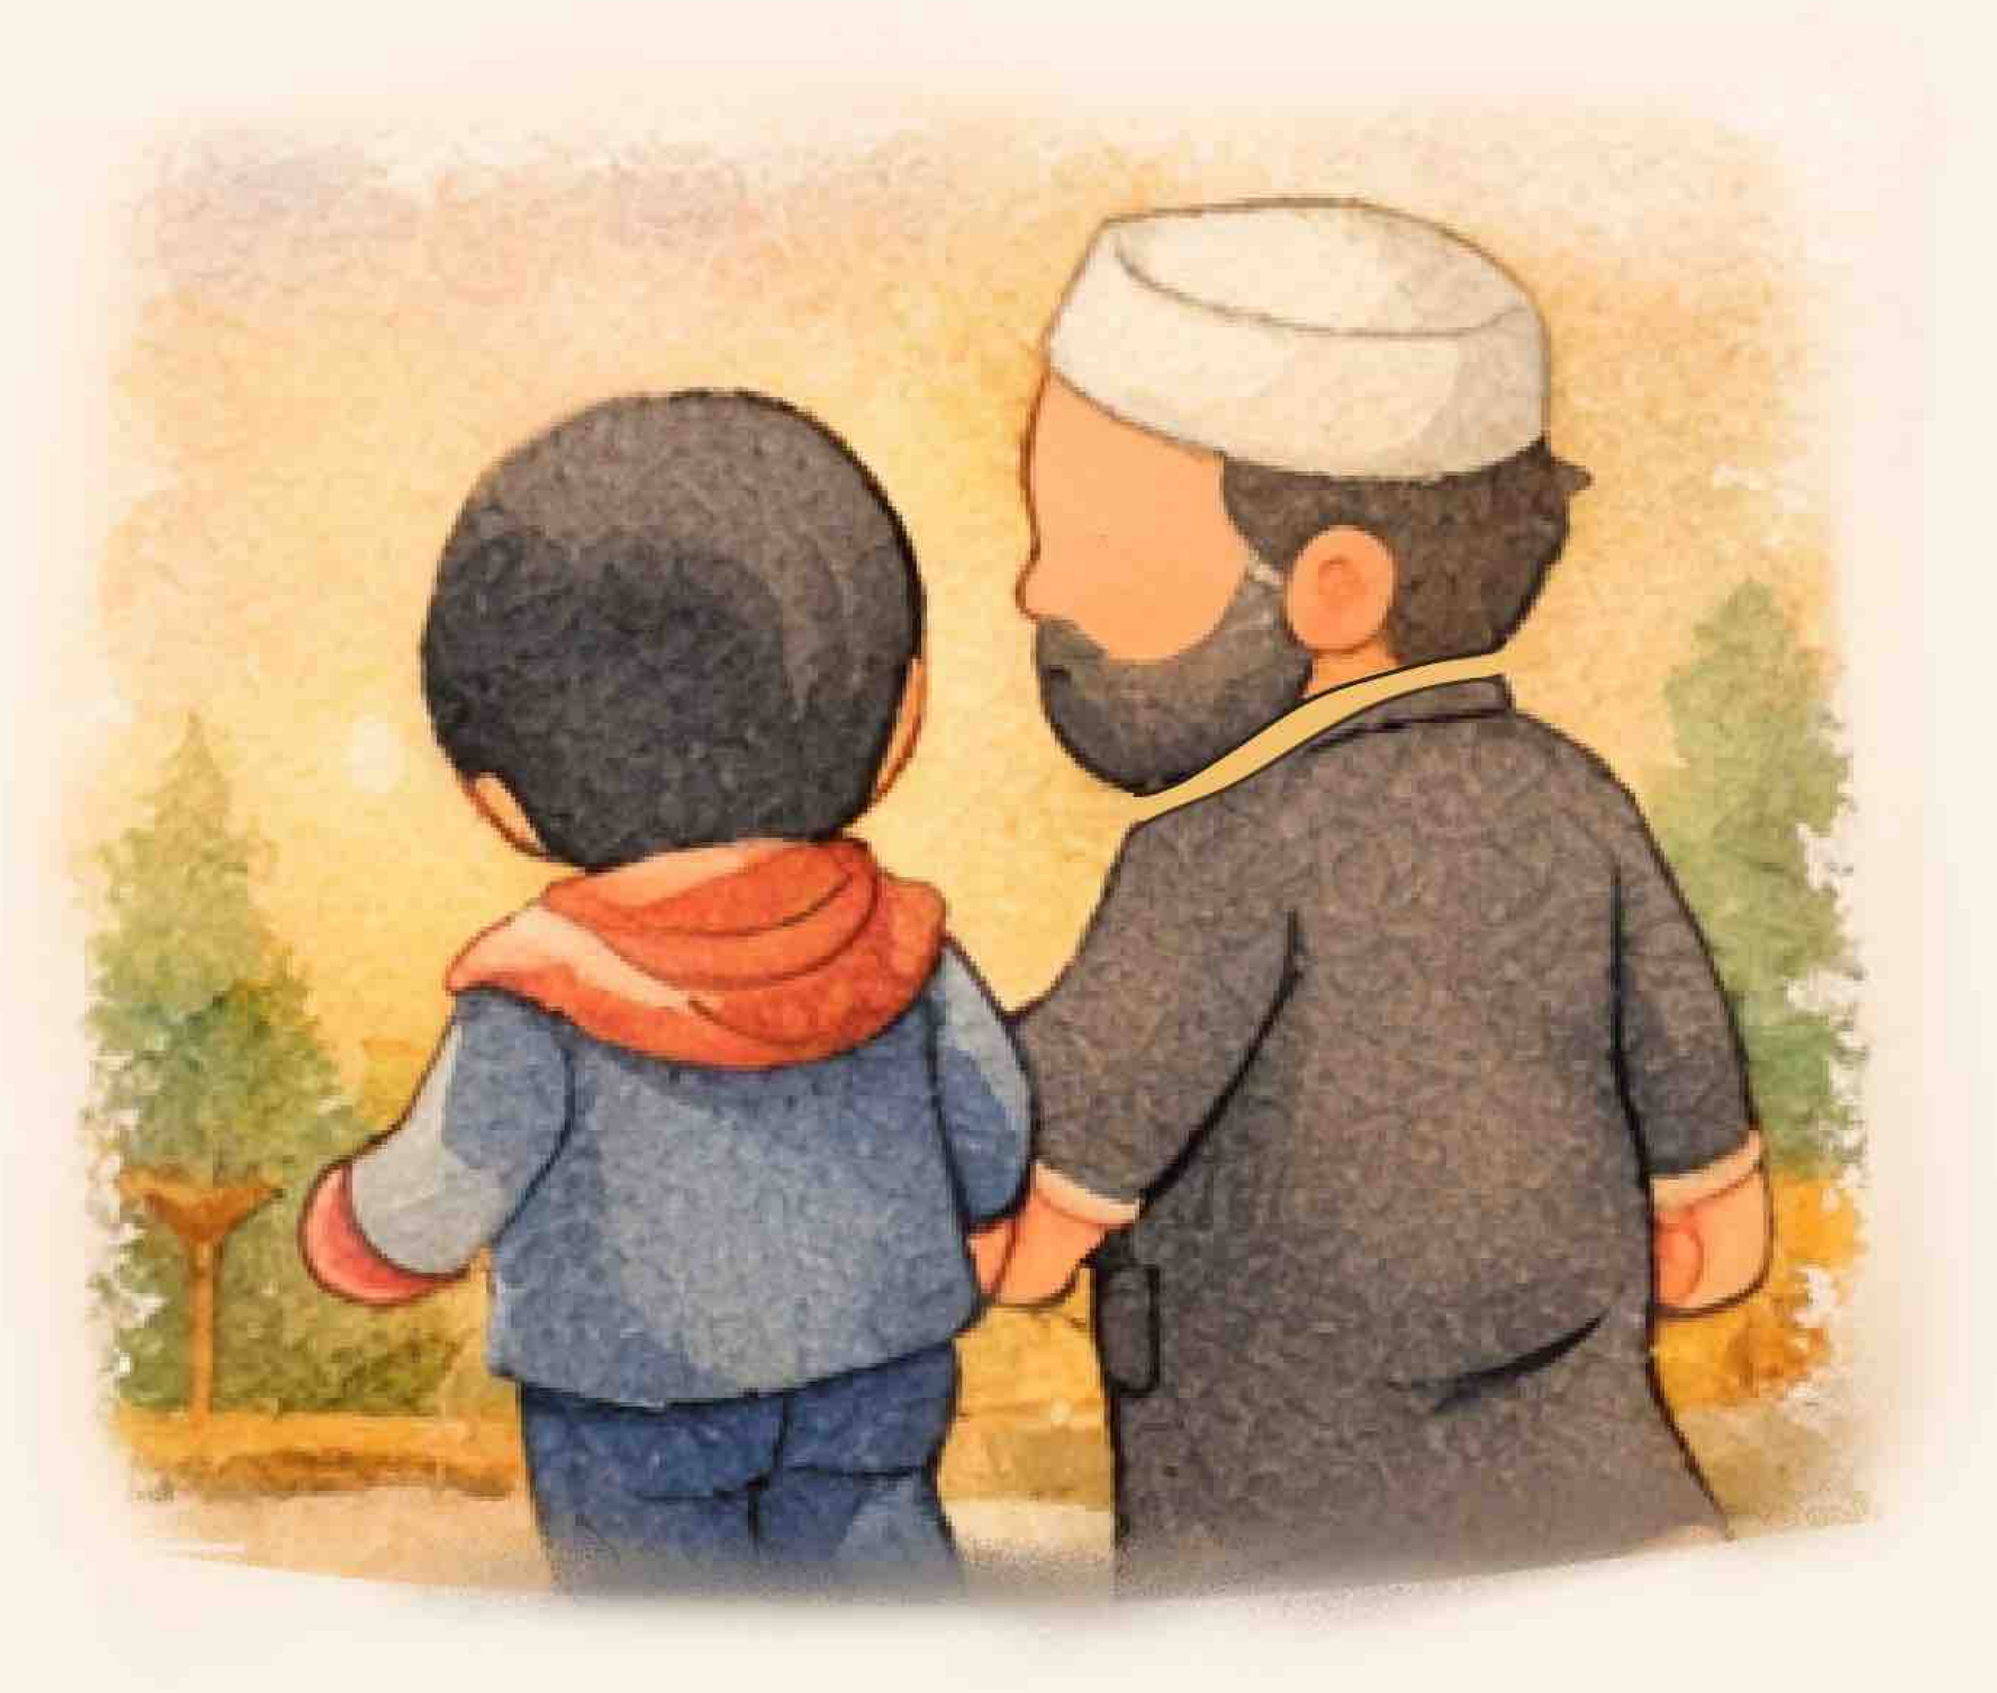

I can't wait to wake up for suhoor soon,
A blessed meal shared under the shining moon.

Suhoor is precious, I don't want to miss,
Making du'a around this time, a quiet happy bliss.

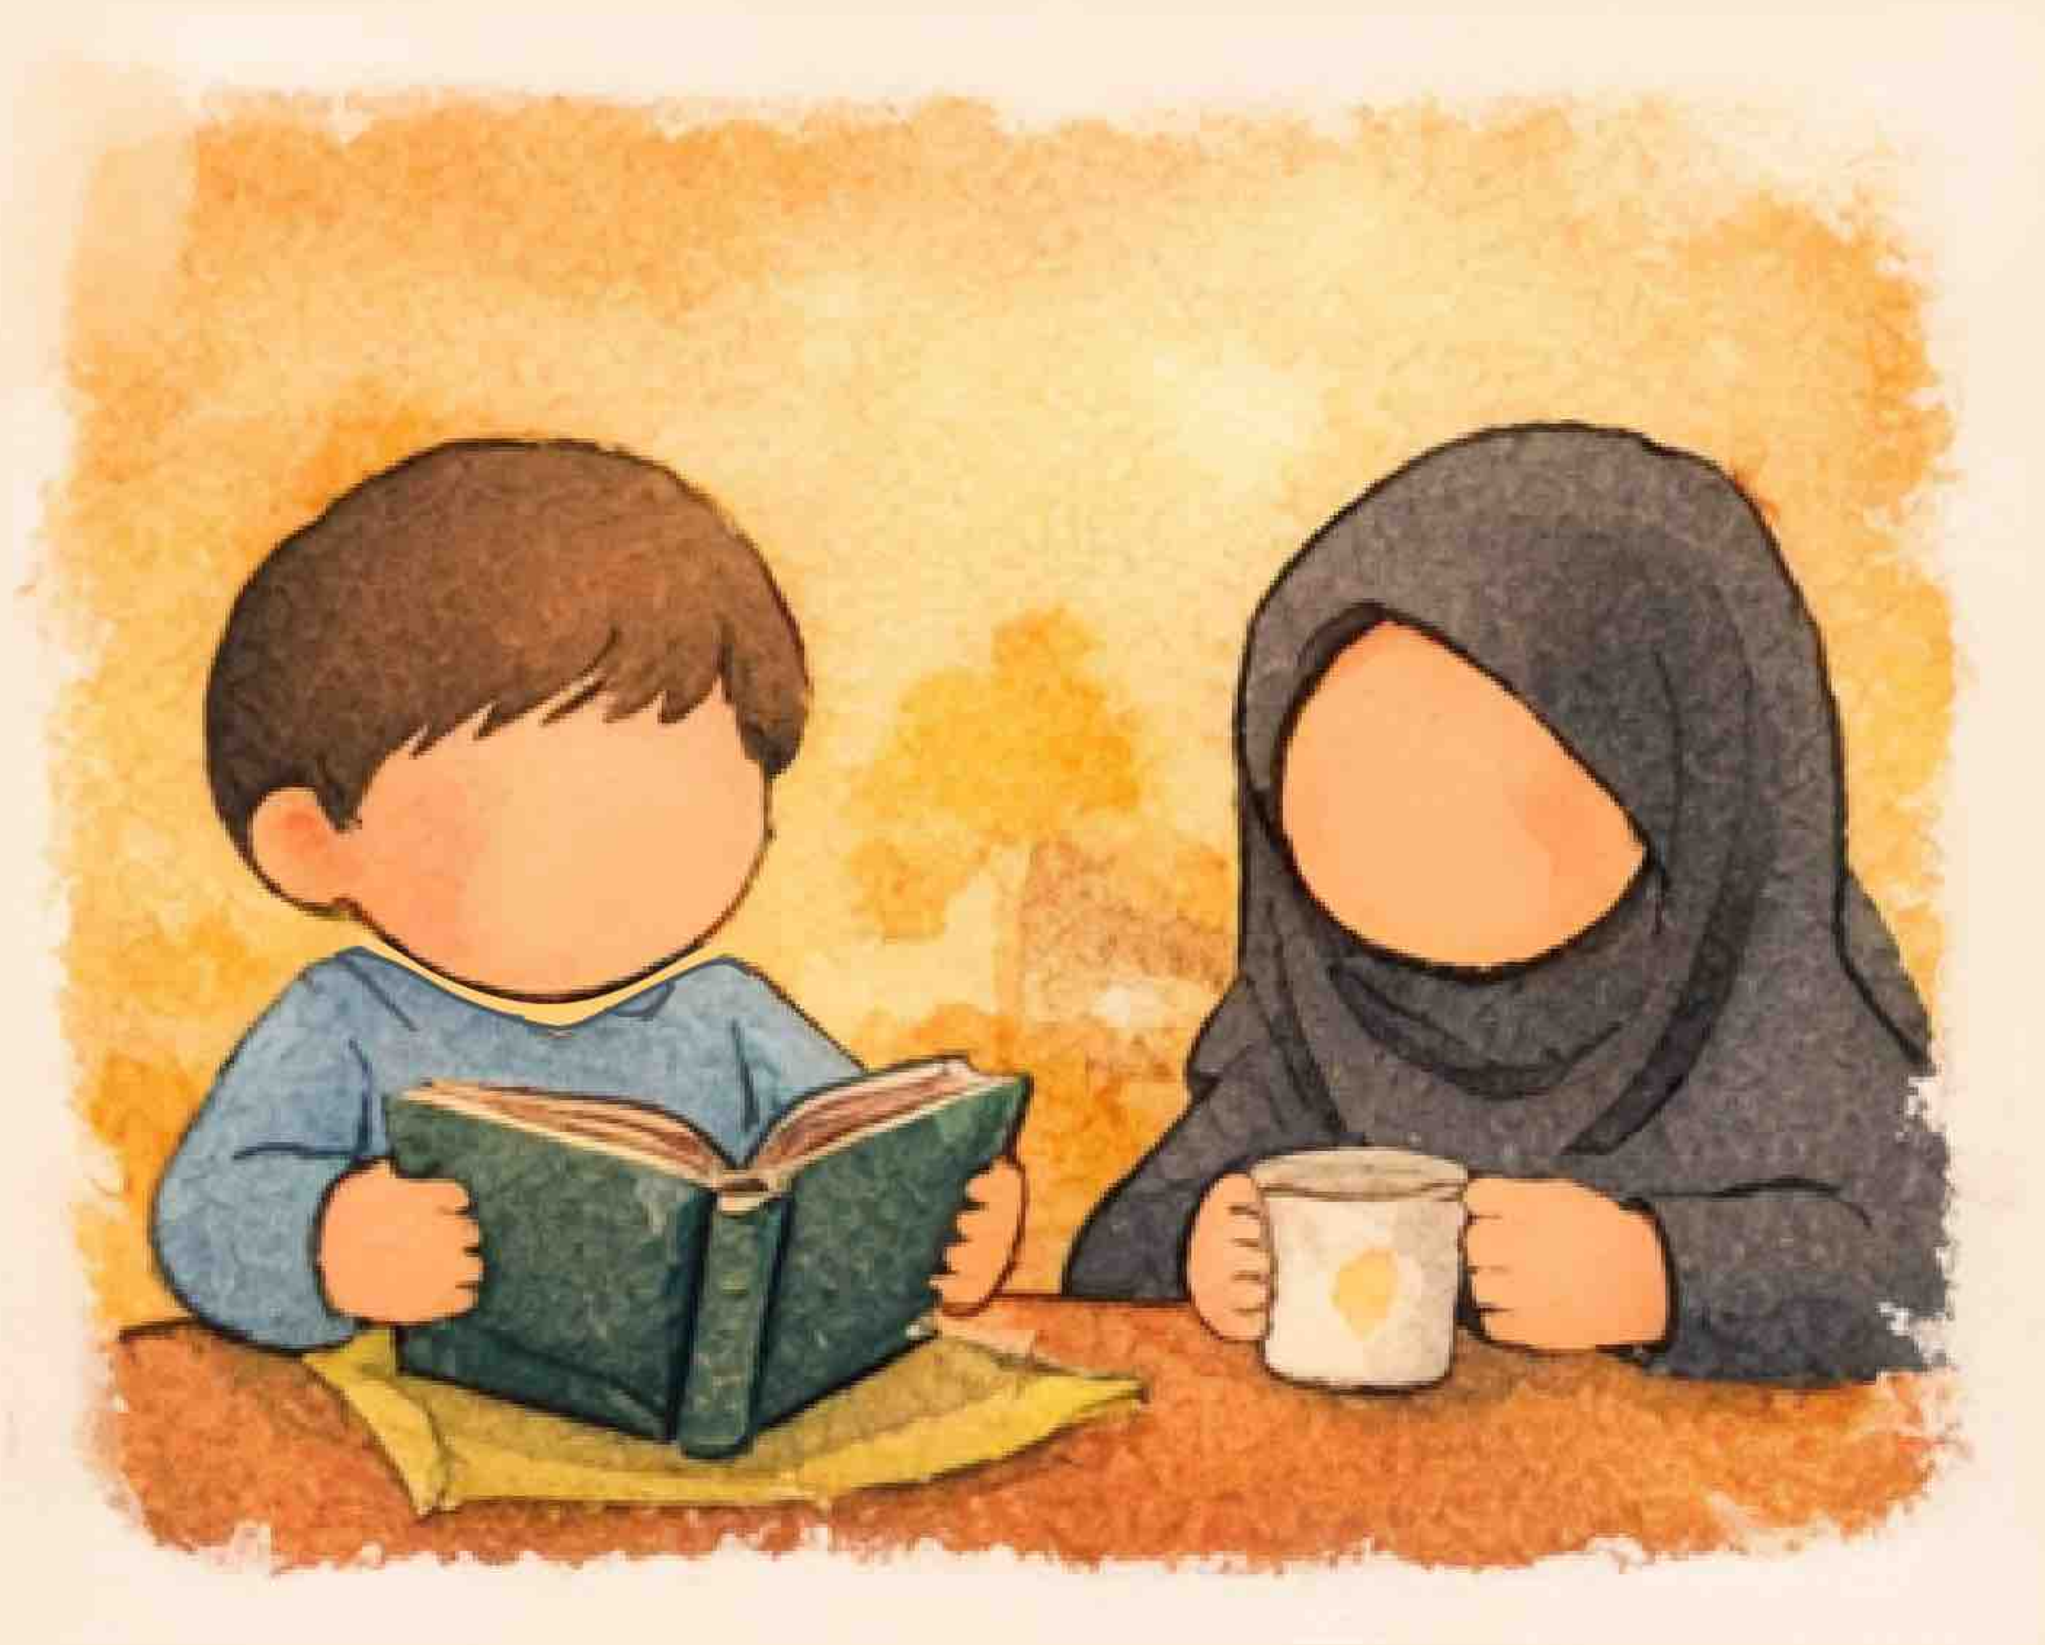

I can't wait to go to the mosque in Ramadan, lively and bright,
With friends in the day and with Dad every night.

I walk with happy little steps to the mosque,
A special place on earth that Allah loves the most.

I can't wait to spend more time with the Qur'an,
I'll stay focused to read it till the last page in Ramadan.

Storybooks and games can wait,
The Qur'an comes first, and that feels great!

I can't wait to help my mum prepare
many things to share,
I've been saving my pocket money so I also can give during Ramadan with care.

A little box of sweet dates for family and neighbors,
And also secret meal gifts in the mosque when the fast is over.

I can't wait to seek laylatul qadr, the night of power,
I'll make the prefect strategy to use every special hour.

Imagine a night when angels fill the sky,
I stay awake to pray with warm tea from my dear mum nearby.

I can't wait for Ramadan, my heart is so full of cheer,
Counting the days until it's finally here.
