I love the color green.
It makes me feel serene.

It makes me want to explore nature.
It makes me want to create something new.
It makes everything more beautiful.

And so was my land.

It was full of greenery.

The grass, the bushes, the trees,
even the little tent I build there.

My land was my favorite place.
I went there whenever I could.

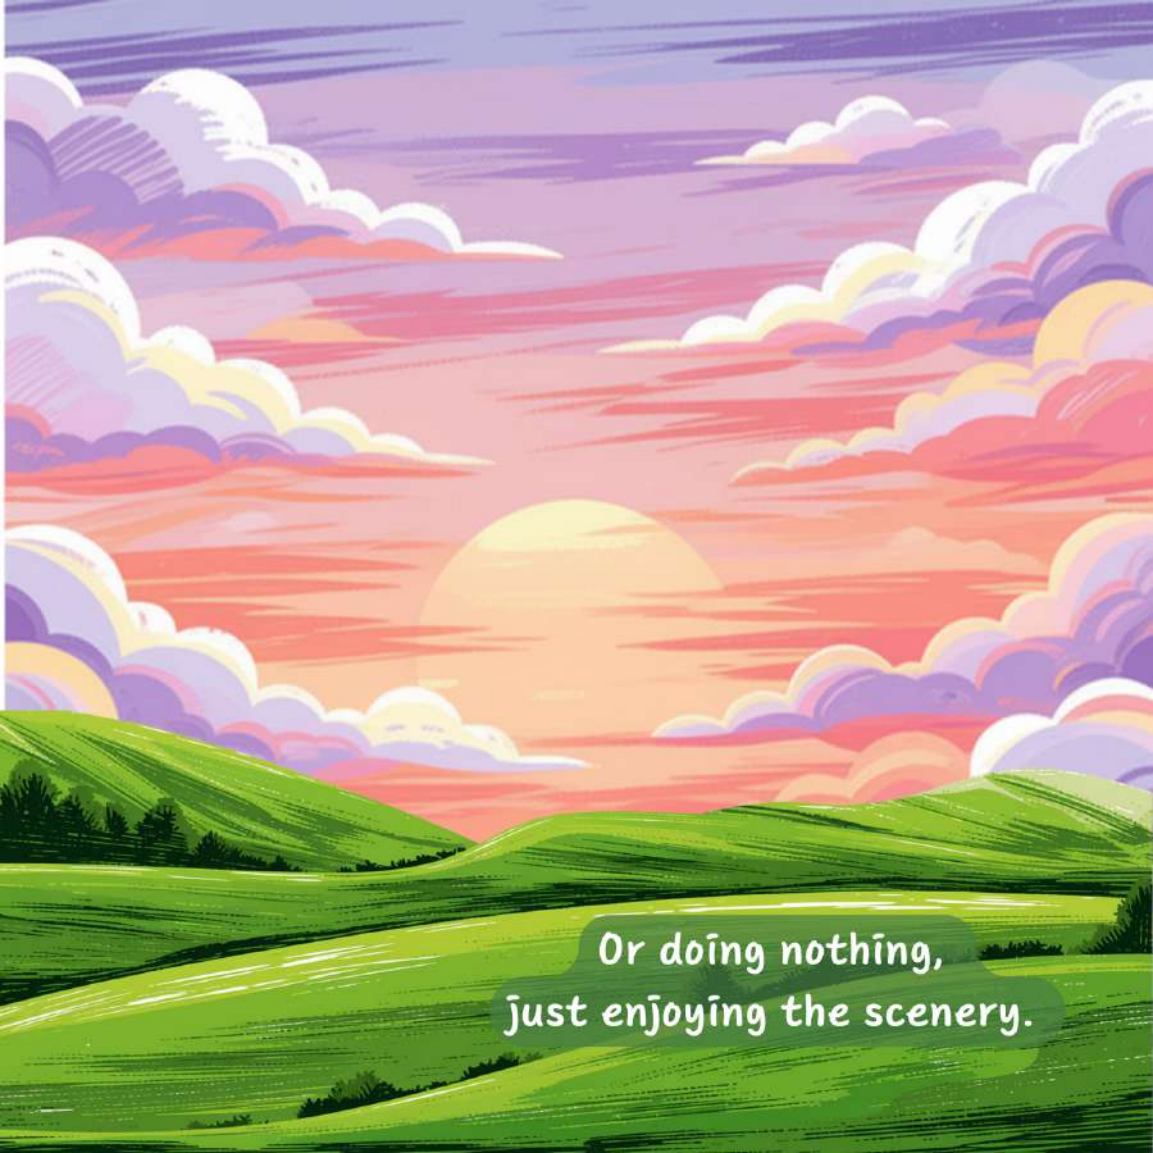

Swinging,

running,

hiding,

Or doing nothing,
just enjoying the scenery.

But now, it's not green anymore.

The green I love has turned gray!

Someone was burning my land.
Someone who doesn't care.
Someone who doesn't appreciate its greenery.

I was sad.
I was so angry.

I wanted to scream.
I wanted to protest.

But Mom told me
to stay calm.

Mom said,

"Never blame anyone else
for what happens to us."

"Everything that happens to us is a test from Allah."

If we have sabr,
Allah will forgive our mistakes.

If we have sabr,
Allah will give us something better!

Allah saīd,

فَإِنَّ مَعَ الْعُسْرِ يُسْرًا

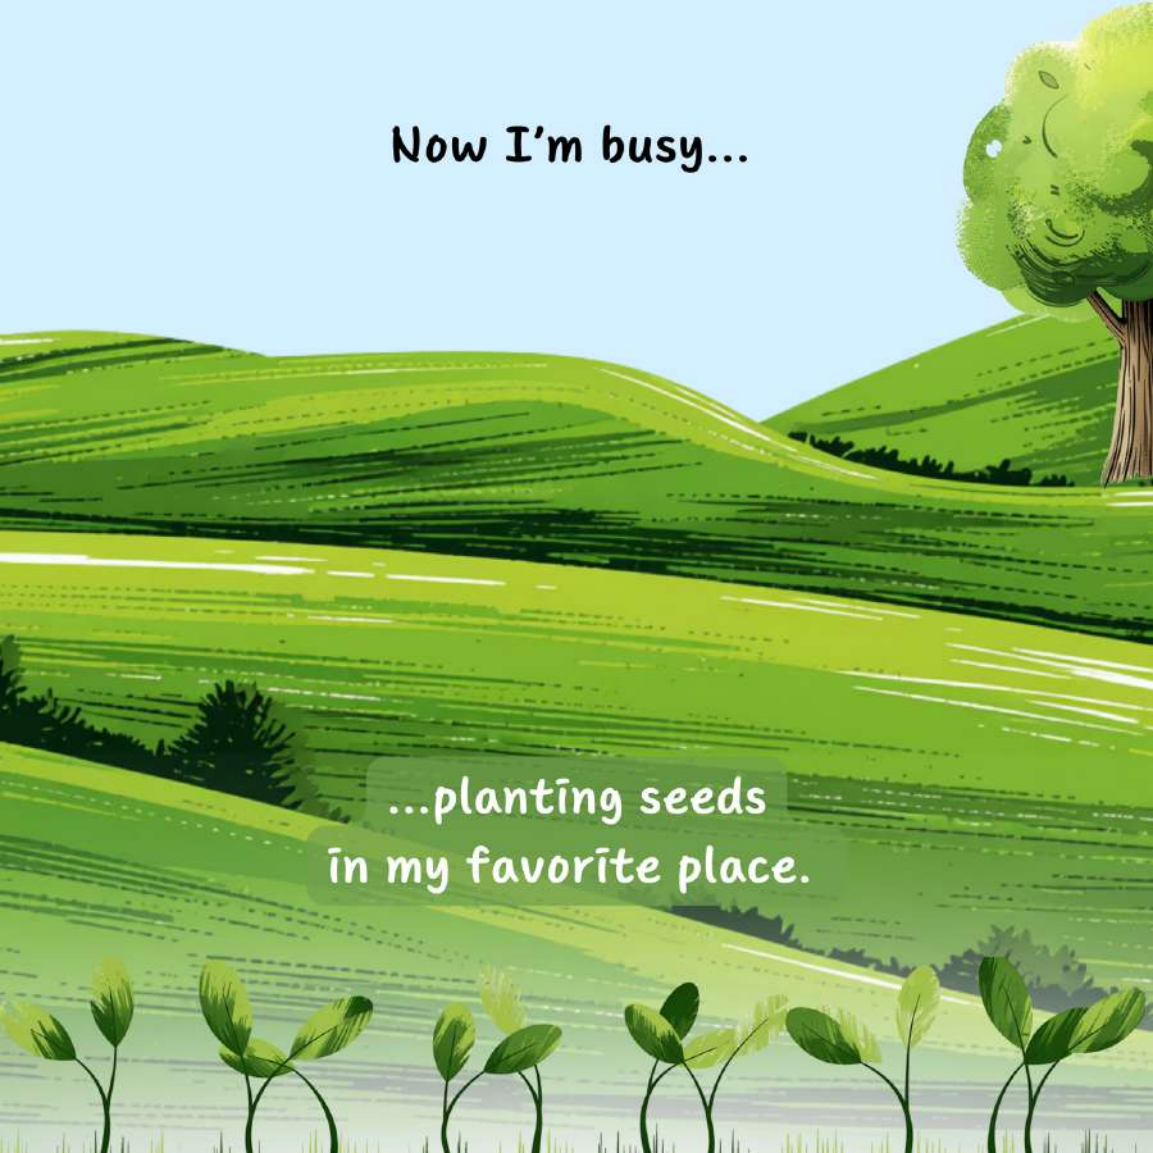

"So, surely with hardshīp comes ease."

(Ash-Sharh : 5)

O Allah, I seek Your forgiveness.

O Allah, please bring the greenery
back to our land.

Now I'm busy...
...planting seeds
in my favorite place.
